ARTHUR LOVELL WARE, Class Secretary.

CLASS MEETINGS.

THURSDAY, Sept. 4, 1873.

A meeting of the class was held to-day at the Parker House to pass appropriate resolutions upon the death of Calvin Edward Abbott. Mr. Ware having been chosen Chairman, Mr. Russell moved that a committee be appointed by the Chair to draw up a series of resolutions. In accordance with this motion, the Chair appointed Messrs. Russell, Osborne, and Estabrooks, who presented the following: —

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from among us our beloved classmate, Calvin Edward Abbott,

Resolved, That we deeply mourn his loss and deplore the early termination of a life so full of promise, but recognize in his death the hand of an inscrutable Providence.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the family of the deceased, and be published in the Advertiser and Transcript.

The foregoing having been accepted, the meeting adjourned.

ARTHUR L. WARE,
Class Secretary.

June 29, 1874.

The regular annual meeting was held at Holworthy 5, at 12 o'clock. The financial report of the Secretary was submitted and accepted. There being no other business, the meeting then adjourned.

ARTHUR L. WARE,
Class Secretary.

June 30, 1875.

The regular annual meeting of the class was held to-day at Holworthy 12. The Secretary called the meeting to order and read a report of the class finances. Accepted. A discussion was then held as to whether the expense of the first triennial supper to be held next year should be borne by the class fund or by individual assessment. Owing to the dilatoriness of payments to the Class Fund, and its consequent small amount, it was voted that the expense be borne by those participating in the supper. It was farther voted that the supper take place upon the evening preceding Commencement next, and that the place, etc., be left to the discretion of the Secretary.

Adjourned.

ARTHUR L. WARE,
Class Secretary.

May 20, 1876.

A meeting of the class was called to-day for the purpose of passing resolutions upon the death of William Ward Dorr. As there was no response to the call, the meeting did not occur.

ARTHUR L. WARE,
Class Secretary.

Oct. 6, 1876.

At a meeting of the class called to-day for the purpose of passing resolutions upon the death of John Coffin Jones Brown, Jr., the following were adopted: —

Inasmuch, As it has pleased Divine Providence to remove from earth John Coffin Jones Brown, Jr., we his classmates have

Resolved, That we view with grief his untimely demise just as he was setting forth on his professional career, remembering the many excellent qualities by which he had endeared himself to his many friends.

Resolved, That the family of the deceased, in their grief because of this great affliction, have our heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and be published in the Advertiser.

Adjourned.

ARTHUR L. WARE,
Class Secretary.

June 27, 1877.

A meeting of the class was held to-day at Thayer 45, at 1 o'clock. Mr. Burnett having been elected Chairman, the Secretary proceeded to read the report of the last meeting, which was accepted. The financial report was then offered and accepted. A discussion was then held relative to the advisability of calling a meeting upon the death of members of the class. A vote was subsequently passed instructing the Secretary to notify by mail upon such occasions those of the class in Boston and vicinity that a meeting would be held. Resolutions of respect to the memory of Redfield and Dorr were then passed, the Chair appointing the Secretary and Messrs. Martin and Morison to prepare the same. The Secretary then made a few remarks relative to the necessity of the payment of the fund subscription.

Adjourned.

ARTHUR L. WARE,
Class Secretary.

June 24, 1878.

A meeting of the class was held at Thayer 45 to-day at noon, with Mr. Burnett in the chair. The report of the former meeting was read and accepted, as was the financial report. It was voted that cigars be furnished at Commencement, if the state of the class fund would permit. It was voted to hold the second triennial supper on the evening preceding Commencement, 1879. It was further voted that those participating who had not paid their subscriptions to the class fund, and those who had not subscribed to the same, should be assessed for the supper at the cost price.

ARTHUR L. WARE,
Class Secretary.

The Second Triennial Report is herewith submitted to the class.

The Secretary desires to thank the few who responded promptly to his circular issued for the purpose of assisting him in the compilation of the Report. And he would ask the many who required a second and third summons, to bear in mind for the future that an early reply to circulars requiring an answer materially lessens the Secretary's labors.

Since the issue of the last Report, the Secretary has to announce the death of Redfield and Brown, brief notices of whom will be found in the subsequent pages. The announcement of the death of Abbott was accidentally omitted in the preceding Report. The death of Myers, a non-graduate member of the class, was but recently brought to the Secretary's notice, although it occurred in 1873.

The amount subscribed to the class fund is $5,350. Of this sum $3,759 has been paid. This is invested in Savings Banks, and the interest used for expenses on Commencement Day, publishing reports, the triennial supper, and other contingent expenses. The fund is so small that the annual Commencement expenses consume a large part of the income, and there is not enough left to meet the expense of the supper and report at the triennial year.

The subscriptions to the college fund amount to $1,140, of which sum $750 has been paid to the trustees of that fund.

ARTHUR L. WARE,
Class Secretary.

CLASS OF 1873.

CALVIN EDWARD ABBOTT.
Died at Cambridge, Sept. 2, 1873.

CHARLES DAY ADAMS.
Is practising law in Boston.

LOWELL DOUGLASS ALLEN.
Secretary has heard nothing from him.

ELGIN ADELBERT ANGELL.
Practising law at Cleveland, Ohio.

FREDERIC FANNING AYER.
Secretary understands that he is engaged in carrying on his late father's estate. Nothing has been heard from him directly.

LEMUEL HOLLINGSWORTH BABCOCK.
Since the issue of the last Report has been practising law in Boston.

THOMAS WILLIAM BALDWIN.
Graduated in June, 1876, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, taking the degree of Bachelor of Science in the Department of Civil Engineering. In May, 1878, began the practice of civil engineering in Bangor, Me., acting as City Engineer a part of that year. Was elected in March, 1879, to the office of City Engineer, and also to the office of Superintendent of Sewers of the city of Bangor for one year.

WILLIAM TORREY BARKER.

Was married, June 24, 1878, to Susan Withers, daughter of Henry H. and Elizabeth B. Warden. Is senior member of the firm of W. T. Barker & Co., paper merchants, in Boston, and reports his business as "successful and increasing." Received commission of Justice of the Peace in 1878.

CHARLES EDWIN BATCHELDER.

Writes with reference to the last Report of the Secretary: "Either you, the printer, or myself has several mistakes to answer for. I did not study medicine in Paris, or in any other place. I attended a few medical lectures there in order to improve my French, but I never intended to make medicine my profession. Neither did I work in a hat factory at Portsmouth. There isn't a hat factory here, and never was. I was a clerk in a retail hat store while studying law, and that's all the truth of the matter." In July, 1876, was admitted to the Suffolk Bar, and practised there a few months. Was appointed by the Governor of New Hampshire, in September of the same year, to the office of Justice of the Police Court in Portsmouth, N.H., which position he still occupies. Was admitted in October, 1877, to practise in the United States Courts of the above district. "I have one son about three years old, and another son as many days old. The first son is named Charles H.; the second is not yet named."

JAMES AUGUSTUS BEATLEY.

Continued to teach in the Chelsea High School until October, 1877, when he accepted the position of Usher in the Boston Latin School. In July, 1878, sailed for Europe, where he is at present engaged in travel and study. Intends to return to Boston this summer and resume his profession as teacher.

WILLIAM APPLETON BELL.

Graduated at the Harvard Medical School in June, 1876. Was married, July 5, 1876, to Ida B., daughter of George W. Hills, of Lawrence, Mass., and sailed for Europe the same month. Having studied medicine in various cities, principally in Vienna, Berlin, and London, he returned to Boston in November, 1878. Removed to Somerville, Mass., the following April, where he is at present practising medicine. A son, Luther V., was born Jan. 27, 1879.

EDWARD DETRAZ BETTENS.

Practising law at 206 Broadway, New York.

FRANCIS HAGAR BIGELOW.

Arrived home from South America June 28, 1876, and entered the United States Naval Observatory at Washington in August, where he continued until April, 1877. Having determined to study theology, he became a candidate for Holy Orders from the Diocese of Central New York, passed his first year of preparation at St. Andrew's Divinity School, Syracuse, N.Y., and is now a student in the Protestant Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge. JOHN COFFIN JONES BROWN, Jr.

Continued his connection with the Harvard Medical School until his death, which occurred in October, 1876, and was occasioned by apoplexy. The degree of M.D. was given him at the Commencement after his death. The following was written at the request of the Secretary by one of the intimate friends of the deceased: —

"To those who knew his excellent qualities of mind and heart, the announcement of Dr. Brown's death came as a sudden shock, and the number of his old friends and acquaintances who hastened to pay him the last tribute of affection, and respect showed the esteem in which he was held. In his studies he showed a strong love for Nature in her many forms. His valuable collection of minerals, acquired during several years at the expense of a great deal of trouble, has since been presented, in accordance with his known preference, to the Boston Latin School, of which he was a graduate. He was deeply interested in the study of medicine, but his sudden death occurred before he had entered upon the practice of his profession."

JOHN BRYANT.

Took his degree as M.D. at the Harvard Medical School in 1877. Was married, in Boston, to Charlotte M., daughter of Fred. Law Olmstead, of Cambridge, Oct. 15, 1878. Is at present in Europe.

LUTHER CLARK REDFIELD.

Continued the practice of law in Boston until his death in May, 1877.

Luther Clarke Redfield, son of the eminent jurist, Isaac Fletcher and Catherine Clarke Redfield, was born at Windsor, Vt., Dec. 25, 1851. The facts of his early life, unknown as most of them are to the writer of this sketch, are soon told. Prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, during this course he spent some months in England, whither his father had gone to transact some business of national importance. In the summer of 1869 Redfield entered college, and, after fair average standing in his class, received his degree of Bachelor of Arts in June, 1873.

Having early chosen the legal profession as the goal of his studies, Redfield's college curriculum was always steadily devoted to this end. History, Latin, Roman Law, and Belles Lettres were his choice, and Biography was perhaps the department of literature in which he most delighted.

Redfield was never, in any sense of the word, destined for that cheapest of honors, popularity. In fact, "a universal favorite" was the last rôle he would have cared to fill, had choice been permitted him. But there was that about the man which invited a desire to be his friend, and, the desire granted, the effort was more than repaid.

Once taken into his confidence, analytical powers of mind, shrewdness, a vast fund of common sense, and a vein of genuine humor made at once an agreeable and delightful character. Men who knew Redfield but little have accused him of moodiness, policy, and utter sang froid; but the few who penetrated beneath the surface found in him the genial, steadfast, and perfect friend. And these college traits but ripened and deepened until the end.

When he left the sheltering arms of Harvard in the summer of 1873, his legal studies separated him from the writer, whose professional course took him to a distant city. But twice every year care was taken that he and one or two other choice spirits should meet and strengthen those friendly bonds. In the summer of 1875, the writer spent with Redfield five happy weeks in a vacation trip through the forest, and genuine pluck, endurance, and cheerfulness made the man even nobler at the camp-fire than in his cosey room in Thayer.

But little more remains to be told. The three years succeeding Redfield's graduation were spent in study at the Boston Law School and in the office of the Hon. Henry W.

Paine. At the end of this time he was admitted to the bar, and the last months of his life were spent in preparing for the press an edition of the works of his deceased father. His father's death, and that of an only and dearly loved sister, together with other family troubles, preyed upon his mind, and threw him into a morbid state terminating in acute mania, of which he died in May, 1877.

The writer of this sketch last saw him in August, 1876, when his many noble, manly qualities shone out as never before.

In the parish burial ground at Windsor, Vt., all that was mortal of Luther Redfield was laid away, according to the rites of that church of which he had been from boyhood a loving and loyal member. But to those who really knew him his memory remains imperishably green, for they think of him as the loved classmate, the trusted adviser, the steadfast friend, and their united prayer is for rest and peace to that spirit whose last days on earth were harassed by so much that was distracting and sad.
